I am applying for an intern position. I will be graduating in May from Brandeis University with a Master's degree in Computer Science. In my resume, I have put hyperlinks to github accounts where my student projects reside. For the following reasons, I know I can succeed in this position.

First, I believe that my Master's degree in Computer Science has given me the tools necessary for success in any IT environment, whether programming, data analysis, or software design. Moreover, my Bachelor's degree in Philosophy has provided me with insightful analysis and excellent reading and writing skills. Likewise, my work experience as a school teacher has provided me with good communication skills and a unique perspective to bring to team projects. I would be very excited to work as an intern for your company.
